

From Behind Our White Picket Fence Week 108
By Freddy and Eddy (www.freddyandeddy.com)

Thanksgiving Already? Damn

OK, who the hell turned off summer? It seems the holiday seasons begin earlier and earlier each year, with Halloween starting in mid-September and X-mas in full swing by October 31st. One day, we won't bother to take down our trees and decorations at all and simply ignore the dates entirely. That said, we're right now enjoying a pretty low-key meal with senile Mom and a couple of friends from Santa Barbara. We've baked some pumpkin pies (using fresh pumpkin and Marscapone cheese mixed in for extra fat), a 14 pound bird, and the usual assortment of traditional goodies. Our son is occupied with getting to the expert level of Guitar Hero III and we'll probably throw on the complete "Star Wars" trilogy after the football games end, with the tryptophan induced naps interspersing the light saber battles and X-wing dogfights. We wouldn't have it any other way.

Better Get Those Love LA Tickets!

OK, so let's start off with a shameless plug for our upcoming erotica show. Don't you want to keep your favorite smut purveyors from losing their cherished Mar Vista home by purchasing a ticket or two to our January 27th event? Thought so! So put this paper down, er, no wait, finish reading our column and THEN rush immediately to the nearest computer, visit www.lovelashow.com, and book your spot immediately. Tickets are only 25 bucks, two for 40 if you enter the promotional code "LSBB," so hurry up and help us sell out and send a message to the adult industry that it's time for a new direction and definition of what a sex show should be.

Are You the Next America's Top Fetish Fashion Model?

On Friday November 30th, 2007 at 10PM, Stockroom.com and an expert panel of judges will be choosing its next male model in a gala event at The Eagle L.A., one of L.A.'s Premier Leather Bars, located at 4219 Santa Monica Blvd. Contestants are asked to submit a current photograph and a paragraph explaining why they should be chosen as a finalist to antfm@stockroom.com. Ten finalists will be chosen from all entries to strut their stuff on the catwalk in a fashion show, modeling the latest Stockroom.com gear. The Grand Prize will include a Stockroom.com gift certificate, and a photo shoot with a yet to be announced adult celebrity.

Some Cool New Toys for the Holiday Stockings

Since tomorrow marks the official beginning to the shopping frenzy, we thought we might highlight a few fun items we'll be wishing for under the sheets. After all, if Jr. gets Guitar Hero, why can't we get something that rocks just as hard?

In the vibrator category, first up is the Toyu, from Big Teaze Toys ($75-95.00, available at our store, Babeland, and Pleasure Chest). A vibrating sphere about the size of a baseball, this delicious little item is great for massage and hitting those intimate areas alike. It's also packaged beautifully and can be used in the shower. Along the same lines, the upscale vibrators from B-Swish ($45.00), combine traditional shapes with a silky texture that invites orgasms before escaping their boxes. On the pricier side, we also love the new Delight g-spot vibe from Fun Factory ($159.00, available at Babeland and Coco D Mer).

We also recommend a couple of books, especially the Merry XXXmas Book of Erotica, from Alison Tyler. A collection of holiday-themed stories that include naughty interludes with Santa and his little helpers, this book will keep you UP all X-mas evening. We also recommend our own book, The Art of Going Down, as well as Violet Blue's Lips Like Sugar, and Candida Royale's How to Tell a Naked Man What to Do.

Gents, if you're looking for something a little gentler, yet sexy, to please your lady, how about surprising her with a Gear Essentials metal cock ring adorning your package after the kids are asleep? Several styles and thicknesses are available and you can wear them as both an erection aid and a sexy way to "bling your thing." Massage candles are also great gifts, as are sexy undergarments (try Luxe Lingerie for the best in show) and even bath salts (in fact, draw her a nice hot bath just before Santa comes with that diamond ring).

In closing, we've decided to open this weekend for the first time in the last four years anyone who comes in tomorrow or Saturday and mentions this column will get an extra 15% off anything in our entire store.
